From the Principal's Desk

Greetings! The vibrant month of April marks the beginning of a new academic year: a season of fresh starts, rich with opportunity, growth, and discovery. As we stand at the threshold of this exciting new chapter, let us move forward with purpose and a shared commitment to making it truly memorable.

The start of a new session is more than just a date on the calendar — it is an invitation to set new goals, reflect on past experiences, and embrace the year ahead with curiosity, resilience, and purpose. Let us strive together to make this year one of meaningful learning, creative exploration, and positive impact.

I encourage our students to lead with integrity, inspire those around them, and pursue excellence in all they do. As younger learners: stay curious, show compassion, and never hesitate to ask questions — for inquiry is the first step toward understanding.

Wishing you all a rewarding, joyful, and successful academic year ahead.

2015 Maybe

Waking up with a smile,
As if I don't mind

That time passed lately,
It was 2015 maybe

If going through a tough time,
Remember there is no straight line

It was a dream lately,
It was 2015 maybe

Waking up like a star,
Being the naughty pal

It was the best time lately,
It was 2015 maybe

It was a past dream,
Being tension free

It was the time lately,
It was 2015 maybe

There was a time,
We used to fake cry

The time passed lately,
It was 2015 maybe

Getting a lot of stuff,
Cause we are teenagers

It's 2025 lately,
Not 2015 maybe

The Torchbearer of Justice

Through shadows deep and voices dim,
He rose with strength, defying the grim.
With wisdom sharp and vision bright,
He fought for truth, he lit the night.

No chains could bind, no walls could stay,
He carved for millions a better way.
The law is his armor and words his might,
He stood for justice, for equal rights.

A torch he held, its flames so high,
Burning caste, Breaking the lie.
With every step, with every stand,
He shaped the future, shaped the land.

Dr. Ambedkar, the fearless guide,
Whose legacy still walks beside.

His pen, a sword against despair,
Each stroke declared a word more fair.
For knowledge he urged, for voices he fought,
The dreams of millions in actions wrought.

No throne he sought, no riches he claimed,
Just dignity's rise, humanity's name.
His flame endures, it never fades,
A light of hope that justice invades.

In every heart that seeks the truth,
His words still echo, strong in youth.
A champion bold, forever bright,
Ambedkar lives in Justice's light.
